

COMMUNIQUE

Web 2.0 : Objet Direct announces a new release 1.3 of Tatami Toolkit

December, 18 – Objet Direct, a French consulting and technology services company specializing in object-oriented architectures and Web programming, is glad to announce a new release of Tatami Toolkit.

Tatami is an Open Source framework which goal is to integrate Dojo widgets in Google Web Toolkit (GWT). It wraps those widgets into GWT Widgets. It now provides a full support of Dojo's charting system, thus allowing client-side creation of a wide range of chart types, as well as a new drag and drop engine based on Dojo's one.

The Tatami project is developed and supported by Objet Direct and France Télécom.

Not exhaustive change list :

- License switched from LGPL only to LGPL or Apache License or BSD
- Now relies on latest Dojo 1.2.3 release
- Charting support
- Tree Widget
- Dojo drag and drop can now be used in Tatami
- The border container has been ported, advantageously replacing both GWT DockPanel and SplitPanels
- Relies on custom dojo builds, optimizing it for the very usage of Tatami
- Easier dijit Theme integration
- New HTML online documentation
- The grid wrapping has been ported from dojo's DataGrid 1.1 to DataGrid 1.2
- Release of TatamiX, extensions for Tatami including an HMVC design-pattern implementation
